

ABOUT ATC DEN

ATC DEN is a new concept gallery space merging contemporary art with a modern-appointed event space for Denver's thriving creative community. ATC is a community canvas for RiNo artists, makers and dwellers while functioning as an experimental and progressive contemporary art gallery. ATC DEN is the true brick and mortar expression of Denver-based artist, Laura Krudener's Among the Colors digital platform. Among the Colors is a lifestyle and community project that connects art, fashion, food and wellness. ATC DEN is designed to accommodate an eclectic mix of social and professional activities all in the spirit of creativity, community and celebration.

THE VENUE

Our main gallery is 2,350 square feet and has beautiful street level presence with floor to ceiling windows that filters natural light into the space throughout the day. Our outdoor patio is 350 square feet and is connected via a glass garage door that opens to the main gallery. The 14 foot ceiling height has exposed ducting that is white washed and is accompanied by professional gallery lighting, acoustic paneling for sound and state-of-the-art speakers from Japan. This large space is a rare find just a few minutes from Downtown Denver. The white walls are filled with captivating contemporary art, however, can also be left empty for optimal customization for private events, making the space a true blank canvas.
